Culture

The culture of a community is determined by the people who live there. At Whitney Center, you'll find a remarkable group of friends and neighbors who come from fascinating backgrounds, and who actively pursue the best life possible.

Many residents give of themselves by volunteering in the local community at schools, art centers and nonprofit organizations. And they stay connected to the arts, humanities and cross-cultural education, both on campus and off.

You'll also find that our core value of hospitality is part of everything we do. Our professional, caring staff is here to serve you – and it won't be long before they feel like part of your family, too.

"We meet no ordinary people in our lives." – C.S. Lewis
